Public Comments about items not on the agenda

Rod Weston: The topic has largely been resolved. His concern has been labeled as nonsense and not facts. At it's core he stated that spending tens of thousands of dollars not formally approved at a public meeting is legally indefensible. Council was advised and accepted that formal actions cannot come out of work sessions. Likes the draft procurement policy and hopes that it comes into use. He stated that the facts are that funds were expended without formal approval and they were not included in the budget spreadsheet. The concerns he brought was based on fact and not nonsense and hopes that council will flag this issue for review with auditors. Concerned with nodding heads can be substituted for formal decisions. It's not about the amount, but about the process. The community is on the cusp of progress and growth and opportunity to keep historic legacy, lead in development of tourism based recreation and it takes a long term plan to accomplish this and it will make financial planning easier. Suggested a bond and long term planning. Suggested keeping eye on the long term.
